Federal Fuel Director Spens Declare Proper Measures Will Be Taken

WILL NOT BOOST PRICE

Operators of State Ready to Co-operate Following Conference

Columbus, Nov. 2 .- After the conference here between federal. Ohio and Michigan fuel officials and coal operators, Federal Fuel Administrator Spens declared that enough Ohio coal to supply the domestic needs of the state will be forthcoming, no matter what measures may be necessary to bring it about.

The prices paid will be as fixed heretofore by the Ohio fuel administration "and no more," asserted Gov- naval censor at Poris. ernor Davis. He said also that Spens on his return to Washington will announce the names of West Virginia producers willing to sell at the federal government's price, so that Ohio dealers may buy from them.

Voluntary co-operation was promised by the operators present, it was said. Who these operators were was not disclosed, but Spens said the number was so small that he expects to call more into conference with him in Washington in a few days.

Spens stressed the importance of preventing cross-hauling, thereby deriving the maximum use of railroad equipment. He added: "The federal fuel distributor, however, feels confident that he can rely upon the voluntary co-operation of the operators to accomplish the result desired. In any event, the public may rest assured IS that the federal administration, in cooperation with the state authorities of Ohio, will permit no neglect of Columbus, Nov. 2.—Society was charged with responsibility for the delinquencies of youth which lead boys and girls into the juvenile courts, by college of education of Ohio State of the man. university, in an address at Memorial hall before the children's division of the Ohio welfare conference.

"The effect of early environment on the character of the human being is as enduring as life itself," he continued. "When we permit improper influences to enter into the life of a child we are branding that child with bad traits of character that will never be overcome." Dr. C. A. Lindsey of the psychiatric clinic of the Children's Aid society of Cleveland deplored punishment of children without proper understanding of the cause of the offense for which punishment is administered.

Physical ailments which sometimes cause children to misbelrave were discussed by Dr. Gertrude Transeu of Columbus, while Miss Edith Campbell of the vocation bureau, Cincinnati, spoke of the need of proper study of the child in education. She said that at present we have a "system with a curriculum that is not based on either welfare or knowledge of the child." "Only the very rich and the very poor receive adequate nursing service in the United States," said Professor Norma Eelbert of the college of medicine, Ohio State university, before the health division of the welfare conference. "The vast majority of citizens, those of moderate means, do not have it," she explained, "because they are unwilling to accept the service given to the poor and unable to pay regular trained-nursing prices. We need more hospitals with moderately priced beds."

New Brunswick N. J. Nov. 2 .-James Mills, husband of the choir singer who, with Rev. Dr. Edward W Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist, was shot to death on the night of Sept. 14, today declared that some of the statements made by Mrs. Hall the widow in her interview yesterday were not entirely accurate.

On Friday-the day after the murders were committed-Mills said that he saw Mrs. Hall four times instead of twice as she claimed yesterday. Mrs. Hali had said that she saw Mills first about 7 o'clock in the morning. "I am sure it was about 8:30 o'clock in the morning for the children had gone to school, said Mills "Mrs. Hall said her husband had not returned home overniht. I exclaimed:

" 'My God, Eleanor has not come home either. I think they have eloped."
Mills said that in response to his exclaimation, Mrs. Hall replied:

"No I think there has been foul The fact that Mills spoke of an elepement and Mrs. Hall mentioned foul play was taken to indicate that both families knew of the attachment between the clergyman and the hand-

The company was promoted and orsanized to establish grocery stores on trucks operating on Dayton streets, and has since extended to Piqua, Springfield and Columbus, with a store operated on a cash and carry basis in this city.

Kumler charges Harris with selling stock of a par value of $100 per share for $1,500 and pocketing $1. 412.50 of this sum. Kumler said Harris would list the purchase on the company's books at $100 a share and deduct his selling commission of $12.50, depositing the balance of the $100 in the company treasury. Harris went to Columbus Wednesday with his attorney, Sidney J. Kusworm and company books, to appear before the securities commission and explain his operations, which had been reported to the commission in violation of the Blue Sky Law.

L. S. Lunsford, manager of the company said Wednesday night that he believed Harris would clear himself with the commission but he admitted that Harris did not take all of the books, but only those which would tend to exonerate criminal methods. Lunsford; Kumler and other company officials also went to Columbus Wednesday, tak-ing other of the company books with them. Musterole Works Without the Blister-Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia). 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.

Assailing the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Bill in vigorous terminology and charging that it will increase the cost of living ten per cent, U. S. Senator Atlee Pomerene addressed an audience at City Hall Theater Thursday afternoon at two o'clock in the interest of his campaign on the Democratic ticket to succeed himself in the U. S. Senate.

Senator Pomerene arrived here with his party from Cincinnati at 10:45 o'clock Thursday morning and was greeted at the Pennsylvania deby a reception committee composed of Greene County Democrats who escorted him to the Regil Hotel. An inforal reception was held there until luncheon time, when the party went to the Elks' Club. After luncheon Senator Pomerene returned to the Regil Hotel where an informal reception in his honor was held.

The senior Senator from Ohio commended the entire Democratic state ticket this fall. His attack against the new Fordney-McCumber Tariff, which he fought so strenuously in the Upper House of Congress was particul Senator Pomerene charged that the

WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN SELF-REVEALED-THE EX-KAISER'S STORY.

Certain newspapers in this and other countries have just been publishing Kaiser William's story, for which they doubtless paid a very large price. It is for them to say whether they feel that they got the worth of their money. Mr. T. R. Ybarra, an American, who translated the Ex-Kaiser's memoirs into English, has published in one of the monthly magazines his views of it. He thinks that the chances are strong that the judgment of most readers upon the Kaiser will be: "A pitifully small man doomed to figure in tremendously big events."

We give some extracts from Mr. Ybarra's article which will show the trend of it, as follows:

"In the midst of discussions of the most portentous events in the years before the war and during the war, William Hohenzollern, author, has a most exasperating way of suddenly dropping to a twist of pettiness which makes it impossible for him to keep his writing on a truly dignified plane for long stretches

"He interrupts disquisitions on Bismarck to turn to lengthy descriptions of men to whom he gave court appointments. He finds plenty of room (in a volume by no means conspicuous for length) to insert long-winded paragraphs of self-approval concerning his services to the cause of art in Germany. In other long paragraphs he pats himself on the back, figuratively speaking, because of his religiousness and the efforts made by him during his reign to benefit religion—anything but a trivial matter, but tainted, when William Hohenzollern touches it, with an unmistakable savor of inappropriateness and triviality. Even the war-even the fact that he has become a dethroned and exiled monarch—cannot keep him from describing complacently how. many years ago, he ordered a certain wing of a certain palace restored in a certain style of architecture; how a Berlin crowd cheered him; how some workmen crowned him once with a laurel wreath; how he valiantly favored the building of a certain railway short-cut around a certain German city, despite the Berserker wrath of the local hotelkeepers. Vanity—and petty vanity at that—continually bobs up in William Hohenzollern, the writer, as it did in William Hohenzollern, Emperor, fiery speech-maker, dabbler in the arts, saber-rattler.

"If only William Hohenzollern, author, would acknowledge himself wrong now and then! If only he would realize that variety is the spice of writing as well as of life—that the tale of a hero who never makes a mistake is likely to set readers yawning. A sprinkling of doubt in his own omniscience, a human chuckle at some confessed blunder, how they would have strengthened William Hohenzollern's 'apologia!' But there is no such thing in his book. If ever a man believed in the doctrine of 'the king can do no wrong,' William does. It is Article One of his creed. It is as self-evident to him as the rising and setting of the sun.

"The aims of the Entente could be attained only through a war, those of Germany only without a war.' In that sentence William Hohenzollern sums up all he has to say in his volume as to where the responsibility lies for the greatest war in history. And, here again, the reader's exasperation at his methods is aroused. If only he would admit that Germany was the least bit responsible for the war, how much stronger would be his case before the world! If only he admitted that there was something AN OLD-FASHIONED TREATMENT cluded in the formula to counteract even remotely akin to militarism in Germany-that he himself had now and then longed for something other than manoeuvres on which to keep his army busy-how much more willing readers of his memoirs would be to listen to his protestations of innocence practically all his patients to take GIVES UP HIS SAVINGS on behalf of himself and all his countrymen. As it is, the thought paramount in the reader's mind is: 'No! There never can have been such a nation of snow-white lambs! There never can have heen such a sweet woolly innocent as William pictures himself to "My father, who was also a physcian, have been!' And that thought constantly recurs to the reader used to send his patients to get fresh as he turns page after page of the Ex-Kaiser's vehement pro- yeas, at a small brewery which at that

The "Gentlemen with Dusters," they still enjoy a boom; wherever cobweb clusters they ply the sawed-off broom. These moralists, all nameless, are writing books to prove that everything is shameless where modern statesmen move. Our statesmen and our rulers have neither hearts nor brains; they should be in the coolers and loaded down with chains. The gentlemen with dusters provide no helpful cure, theyr'e rather poor adjusters of evils we endure. They point out Goths and Vandals who in high places stand, they dig up musty scandals to horrify the land; but they are masked while prodding the erring, sinful ones, and so it's only wadding emerging from their guns. Methinks the gent sarcastic who plies a bitter pen, and heaps revilings drastic upon his fellow men, should tell just what his name is, when he completes his task, and then whate-er his game is, he wears no piker's mask. Then, when his facts he musters, he's of a human size; but gentlemen with dusters are rabbits in disguise.

Vanity—and petty vanity at that—continually bobs up in William Hohenzollern, the writer, as it did in William Hohenzollern, Emperor, fiery speech-maker, dabbler in the arts, saber-rattler.

"If only William Hohenzollern, author, would acknowledge himself wrong now and then! If only he would realize that variety is the spice of writing as well as of life-that the tale of a hero who never makes a mistake is likely to set readers yawning. A sprinkling of doubt in his own omniscience, a human chuckle at some confessed blunder, how they would have strengthened William Hohenzollern's 'apologia!' But there is no such thing in his book. If ever a man believed in the doctrine of 'the king can do no wrong.' William does. It is Article One of his creed. It is as self-evident to him as the rising and setting of the sun.

"'The aims of the Entente could be attained only through a war, those of Germany only without a war.' In that sentence William Hohenzollern sums up all he has to say in his volume as to where the responsibility lies for the greatest war in history. And, here again, the reader's exasperation at his methods is aroused. If only he would admit that Germany was the least bit responsible for the war, how much stronger would be his case before the world! If only he admitted that there was something AN OLD-FASHIONED TREATMENT, cluded in the formula to counteract even remotely akin to militarism in Germany—that he himself had now and then longed for something other than manoeuvres tation in the treatment of blood and on which to keep his army busy-how much more willing readers skin dieases tells me that he advises of his memoirs would be to listen to his protestations of innocence practically all his patients to take GIVES UP HIS SAVINGS on behalf of himself and all his countrymen. As it is, the thought paramount in the reader's mind is: 'No! There never can have been such a nation of snow-white lambs! There never can have been such a sweet woolly innocent as William pictures himself to "My father, who was also a physcian, have been!' And that thought constantly recurs to the reader used to send his patients to get fresh as he turns page after page of the Ex-Kaiser's vehement pro- yeas, at a small brewery which at that testations."

WITH DUSTERS.

The "Gentlemen with Dusters," they still enjoy a boom; wherever cobweb clusters they ply the sawed-off broom. These moralists, all nameless, are writing books to prove that everything is shameless where modern statesmen move. Our statesmen and our rulers have neither hearts nor brains; they should be in the coolers and loaded down with chains. The gentlemen with dusters provide no helpful cure, theyr'e rather poor adjusters of evils we endure. They point out Goths and Vandals who in high places stand, they dig up musty scandals to horrify the land; but they are masked while prodding the erring, sinful ones, and so it's only wadding emerging from their guns. Methinks the gent sarcastic who plies a bitter pen, and heaps revilings drastic upon his fellow men, should tell just what his name is, when he completes his task, and then whate-er his game is, he wears no piker's, mask. Then, when his facts he musters, he's of a human size; but gentlemen with dusters are rabbits in disguise.

ANTIOCH STUDENTS'

An Antioch Students' Loan Fund to be used to make loans to students, is being organized at Antioch C: Lege according to President Arthur E.

The proposed fund is said to result from feeling among students, who are unable to finance their way through school that they did not want to accept scholarships or various forms of charity. They have introduced the plan of polling their credit to obtain necessary financial assistance.

Members of the student loan assuciation in addition to repaying their individual loans with interest agree to meet additional assessments up to 50 per cent of their individual loans if necessary to make up any default which may occur through failure of ny individual to pay his laon. "Since members are responsible for each other's debts they naturally are very careful in taking into the association only students in whom they have full confidence," according to President Morgan. have to be approved by the faculty-

To carry out its program, the stadent loan association finds it neces sary to borrow about $12,000 which will be solicited by a board of trustees of five members. This board is empowered to solicit and accept gifts. contributions, loans or advancements of money or other property for the purpose of paying and maintaining the loan fund, according to the proposed constitution.

Continued interest in each meet ng of the two-day session of the Hillsboro District of the West Ohia Conference, held Tuesday and Wednesday at the New Burlington M. E. Church, marked the success of the entire gathering. Over five hundred people, including forty ministers, with their wives and delegates, attended the meeting.

The district represented at the conference, comprised Clinton, Highland, Clermont, Adams, and Brown counties Dr. M. E. Ketchum of Milford Ohio, the presiding superintendent having charge of the entire meet-

Among the important addresses on the program of the conference was that of Dr. Albert E. Smith, president of Ohio Northern University at Ada, whose speech on "America, the Hope of the World," was one of the outstanding features of the session. The address was confined to patriotic lines, dealing with the conditions of the world from the political stand

Bishop William F. Anderson, of Cincinnati, the resident bishop of the Cincinnati area, who was to address | the Wednesday evening meeting, was unable to be present, his place being taken by Dr. J. M. Eason, of Hillsboro.Dr. Eason chose for his subject "The Church" dealing with its or ganization and works over the United States during the past one hundred years. WILL VOTE AGAIN ON SCHOOL BONDS

Voters in Spring Valley Township will vote for the third time next Tuesday, November 7, on the proposition of issuing $65,000 worth of school bonds for the purpose of erecting a new Central High School in the township. The proposed issue carries with it a plan to give the township a real first-grade four-year high school something that is now not available for pupils who live in that township. The plans call for its erection on a location as near the center of the township as possible so that it will be easily accessible from pupils in all parts of the district.

Spring Valley and New Burling. ton people interested in the proposition believe that it will carry on its third presentation to the voters. On the other two times that the bond issue was introduced, misunderstandings are believed to have developed that caused defeat.

At present the only high school in the township is located at spring Valley, where there is only a threeyear second-grade high school op. erated. Students in and near New Burlington take the first two years of high school work there and then finish at Spring Valley.

Plans for the new building, will, if the bond issue carries, give the township an up-to-date and modern building as well as enabling school authorities to give the students a four-year first grade school from which diplomas will serve as entrance certificates to most higher institutions of learning. If the issue carries, and the building is erected, students in New Burlington and Spring Valley will be given junior high school courses preparatory to entering senior high school, but no centralization of the grade schools is contained in the plan.

WILL VOTE AGAIN ON SCHOOL BONDS SPRING VALLEY

Voters in Spring Valley Township will vote for the third time next Tuesday, November 7, on the proposition of issuing $65,000 worth of school bonds for the purpose of erecting a new Central High School in the township.

The proposed issue carries with it a plan to give the township a real first-grade four-year high school something that is now not available for pupils who live in that town-ship. The plans call for its erection on a location as near the center of the township as possible so that it will be easily accessible from pupils in all parts of the district.

Spring Valley and New Burling. ton people interested in the proposition believe that it will carry on its third presentation to the voters. On the other two times that the bond issue was introduced, misunder-standings are believed to have developed that caused defeat.

At present the only high school in the township is located at spring Valley, where there is only a threeyear second-grade high school op. erated. Students in and near New Burlington take the first two years of high school work there and then finish at Spring Valley.

Plans for the new building, will, if the bond issue carries, give the township an up-to-date and modern building as well as enabling school authorities to give the students a four-year first grade school from which diplomas will serve as entrance certificates to most higher institutions of learning. If the issue carries, and the building is erected, students in New Burlington and Spring Valley will be given junior high school courses preparatory to entering senior high school, but no centralization of the grade schools is contained in the plan.

> I laughed over the episode. Fido was perfectly all right the next day. being called to attend his mother's dog, we would be a laughing-stock. It did get about, and George Harter and others teased Walter unmerciful

"You have too much good sense to make a fool of yourself over a dog!" he replied, and althought it was not

"A dog! I'm not a dog doctor!" the physician threw a disgusted glance at Walter. "But you can do something for him if you are not."

"Call a doctor at once!" I heard her ay through the door. "What is it, are you ill?" I asked "Walter" the physician threw a disgusted glance at Walter. "But you can do something for him if you are not."

The doctor opened his bag. the look of resentment deepening on his face and gave her a powder to dissolve in another side of her character.

I occasionally had severe neuralgic "If he has eath anything that disagrees with him that will help him, he said ungraciously. "If it doesn't you call a vet."

As he went out I heard Walter stay in bed. After he left for the studio, Mrs. Page came in to see me; and, whether it was because I looked so desperately ill-I always grew very pale or if she were really sorry for me, she nursed me all day, was gen-tle, soothing kind. She had been sub-ject to headaches when younger herself, and knew just how one suffered,

I was grateful and berated myself for judging her so hastily. She had been kindness itself to me; and I determined to forget my silly dislike of her; to remember she had her good points, as well as ones that annoyed
